The excellent sermon by Rev. Jasper K. Smith, in this city, recently, on the subject of Practical Religion In Business attracted deep attention. Somewhat akin to the subject is this narrative from the New York Sun:

Two weeks ago the Rev. Roberts H Wick, the pastor of the Wayne Street Reformed Church in Jersey City, sent a circular letter to 200 representative citizens asking them to answer six questions which he inclosed, and stating that he proposed to use the answers as texts for a series of six sermons. The onestions were:

1. Why do so many men of good moral and business standing maintain an attitude of indifference toward the Church? 2. What influence in our community has the most debilitating effect morally upon our young men?

3. What do you regard as the greatest enemy of our home life?

4. Do you think, in view of our pre sent methods of business, that a mar can be a conscientious Christain and at Insure your homes and the same time be successful in business? 5. What can the churches do to lessen the amount of vice and crime?

At exactly 8 o'clock all the church bells and all the town whistles began ringing and screeching the annonncement that boys and girls must get child could have been found outside the parental roof. The weather made the first night of Alderman Stow's ordinance a success. There was no need of policemen or curfew bells to inaugurate the law. After waiting an hour for the report from some of the patrolmen Chief Bartram gave out an order that the officers might turn their attention to burglars and common drunks for the rest of the night. Bad weather did not deter Alderman Stow from ushering in his ordinance with proper ceremony, Sexton Walker in the First Baptist signal. Alderman Stow stood beside him and counted off the seconds before the hour came. It did not matter that prayer meeting was being held in all the churches. The Alderman gave the signal and immediately there was a noise like a Fourth of July celebration. Fire bells that have not rung for years joined the church bells, and whistles at the Globe Machine Works and the waterworks helped on the din. Locomotives passing through Evanston also fell in years it is said the University clock did In the police station Chief Bartram was making preparations for booking several hundred youngsters. He called a meeting of his braves and instructed them in the art and etiquette of making arrests under a curfew ordinance. He read the ordinance. Then he gave every them to go forth and battle with the children as only the Evanston police as to the fate of the hardy patrolman the Chief sent out his order to begin less dangerous work rounding up thugs and house-breakers. Alderman Stow spent the evening congratulating himself that for the first time in the history of the town not a child was on the streets where he could be schooled in crime. Even the choir boys who meet every Wednesday night at St. Mark's church did not run the risk of an encounter with the new law. When they went home they went in cabs or were under the protection of their parents. Big en, too, were cautious lest they l mistaken for boys and treated accordwent home from University Hall long before the eventful hour and did not leave again during the evening. Volney W. Foster does not like the law and ventured a trip over to the club house of the Back Lot Society. Friends tried to dissuade him, but he insisted and for tunately was not apprehended. In Maple avenue there was a com pany of small boys who had planned a welcome for the officer who should interfere with their evening sport. They dug a trench and covered it with brush The officer was to be decoyed into chase, and the wicked boys reveled in the thought of seeing one of the po licemen struggling in the trench after the manner of the giant which Jack killed. The weather prevented this little enactment, but the small boys promise to bring off the fun at a later date. The ordinance which is shaking Evanston to its foundation was passed by the City Council October 26. It provides that it is unlawful for any person under tended by no general fall of prices, but the age of 15 years to be or remain upon the streets after 8 o'clock in the winter the difference in the conditions of gold or 9 o'clock in the summer, unless accompanied by a parent or guardian, or duty.
